Røkkkr's Home Series introduces in-person matches and other activations and entertainment to the Call of Duty League in between Major tournaments and gives fans additional opportunities to see their favorite players compete on stage.

"The Home Series is a response to the incredible passion of our fan base, and the interest we've seen from both fans and players for more in-person, live event competition," says Brett Diamond, Chief Operating Officer at Version1. "It is important that we build on the success we had hosting a CDL Major last season, while also developing a new esports event concept that allows fans in the region to attend more live CDL events. CDL Majors will always be the tentpole events of the season, but right sizing in-market opportunities like this are necessary to drive continued growth and overall progress in esports entertainment."

Visiting teams will travel to Minnesota and the region to compete and Version1 will make its headquarters and practice facility available for scrims and match preparations. The venues Version1 is eyeing for the Røkkkr Home Series will accommodate about 1,000 fans. For context, the Call of Duty League Major hosted by Minnesota Røkkkr in March-April 2022 sold out at about 2,000 attendees daily for the four-day event.

"We are thrilled to partner with Version1 and Minnesota Røkkkr on this exciting new program," says Dani Marks, Senior Vice President of Marketing at Oxygen Esports. "From inception, Oxygen Esports and the Boston Breach have made significant investments in the future of regionalized esports and believe that to build a sustainable local eco-system, organizations must give esports fans a diverse array of in-person experiences. When Røkkkr presented us with the idea to help pilot the Home Series program we jumped at the opportunity as it unifies us as partners in the CDL while offering fans something new and fresh."

"Minnesota Røkkkr continues to push the League forward by creating new ways for CDL teams and players to connect with fans while simultaneously creating the best competitive environment possible," says Alex Rubens, Senior Vice President at The Guard and Kroenke Sports and Entertainment. "We're excited to be a part of this pilot program and cannot wait to return to a Minnesota-hosted event for the first time since our Major 2 win last season."

"Our organization always looks forward to playing in live events, so we're thrilled to face off against top-flight competition like Røkkkr in a live environment," says Michael "ODEE" O'Dell Chief Gaming Officer at the London Royal Ravens.

"We truly appreciate the partnership with Boston Breach, Florida Mutineers, LA Guerrillas, and London Royal Ravens to make the 2023 Home Series a reality," says Diamond.

“These events are a first step in creating more live event experiences for CDL fans, and teams working together to deliver on what the community is asking for is critical to the growth of competitive CoD.”

Footage of players on stage and fans in the crowd at the Minnesota Røkkkr Home Series will be part of Call of Duty League’s live stream, building on the hype created in previous seasons around shots from Røkkkr watch parties shown during the broadcast between maps.
